Market Analysis - June 15, 2005

Michael Haigh-Assistant Professor University of MD Cooperative Extension

Corn dropped about 8 cents last week due to negative reactions to USDA report and good moisture in the Corn Belt. On the monthly report, the domestic balance sheets came in unchanged from the previous month. It was the large domestic carryover that pulled prices down. The forecasts at the end of last week called for dryer, hot weather which supported the market, so who knows where it may have ended up if we hadn't got those forecasts, especially after we saw bearish export numbers. On Monday, corn was up and the speculators bought up contracts. The overall trend remains sideways however. In the cash markets, sluggish exports, a negative, or rather, lackluster inspection report continues to put pressure on basis bids (and we see that locally). On Tuesday the rally in the soybean market pulled corn up. The market may stay up for a while given hot weather forecasts. Soybeans ended lower last week (surprisingly), because at the start of the week he had a surge in prices. Monday took care of that drop as the speculators came in at full force and bought up boat loads of contracts. The buying was tied to warm weather and the prospect that Hurricane Arlene might blow rust spores from the delta into the growing areas. The rally in futures hurt basis however as the cash markets didn't move too much. On Tuesday beans moved solidly higher partly because of a very supportive NOPA report - up 24.5% on May! Wheat was lower last week, yet the market seemed to be showing signs that the sell off was almost complete. On the USDA report the wheat balance sheet was slightly friendlier than people expected. On Monday wheat continued to find support because of weekend rains in the Southern plains. Parts of Kansas had 9 inches grinding harvest to a complete stop. Soybean buying on Tuesday and Wednesday also spilled over to the wheat pit

WEEKLY CROP WEATHER SUMMARY

MARYLAND AGRICULTURAL STATISTICS SERVICE

A downpour early in the week left fields flooded in many areas across the state. Crops affected by the standing water included corn, soybeans, and hay. Following the heavy precipitation, above average temperatures promoted the drying down of small grains and the growth of other crops, including corn. There were 4.7 days suitable for field work. Small grains were reported in mostly good condition. Barley was rated 3 percent poor, 20 percent fair, 57 percent good, and 20 percent excellent. Winter wheat was rated 3 percent poor, 21 percent fair, 59 percent good, and 17 percent excellent. Pasture was rated 1 percent very poor, 2 percent poor, 25 percent fair, 47 percent good, and 25 percent excellent while hay supplies were rated 6 percent very short, 11 percent short, 76 percent adequate, and 7 percent surplus.
